JSDD believes that leaders like Al Anthony are crucial in guiding Livingston to being a fully inclusive town. Al is an extraordinary public servant who has demonstrated his commitment to his belief that communities are made whole when all members are included. Al was instrumental in garnering support for employing someone full time to coordinate the township's effort to include people with special needs as part of the fabric of what Livingston offers its citizens.

The event also honored Barry R. Mandelbaum, of Mandelbaum Salsburg P.C., with the Outstanding Advocate And Humanitarian award. Barry has been revered for being a great leader, providing friendship to all and always standing up for what is right.

To continue supporting our talented artists, JSDD invites our friends, families, and constituents to experience our interactive art exhibit hosted at the Gaelen Gallery East at the JCC in West Orange, which will be open to the public from November 11th through December 30th, 2018.

According to Executive Director Linda Press, “The WAE Center is a wonderful manifestation of what we do here at JSDD. The vibrant talents of our individual members are once again on display for the community to appreciate, and we couldn’t be more appreciative of the support we receive to enable these programs.”
